TURNING THE CORNER.
One day you turned the corner
And never knew you turned.
Until, far on your journey,
The bitter truth you learned.
One day you turned a corner
A-whistling jolly airs,
And you did not see the turning
Till you were elsewhere.
One day you turned a corner—
To you the road was straight;
But, ah! you mislaid the blossoms
When it was all too late.
That day you turned the corner—
Today you know the truth—
You left behind forever
The smiling vale of youth.

TO RECEIVE BLESSING.

Cincinnati Couple Undergo a Second Marriage Ceremony.

The Commercial Tribune says considerable surprise was created Tuesday among the friends of Harry Root and Miss Nellie Brit, when it was made known that the couple had been married for more than a year.

The nuptial knot was tied again the other day according to the rites of the Catholic Church to overcome an objection of the parents of both parties on account of religious differences.

On February 25, 1902, Miss Brit and Mr. Root eloped to Maysville, where they were secretly married.

They returned immediately to Cincinnati and said nothing of the affair until it accidentally became known to Miss Brit's parents several days ago. The latter finally relented when the young couple consented to the second marriage by a Church ceremony.
